We have, in our estimate, taken but a portion of the mining region of California, and our road will be continued to the quantity of gold dust which can be taken from these streams, or from their immediate neighborhoods, constitutes at least two-thirds of all the gold taken from the mines of California.

The quantity of gold obtained by miners during the last winter, was small in proportion to what it ought to have been. Miners then looked forward to the opening of spring, anticipating far richer diggings in the beds of rivers, when the waters should subside. In anticipation of rich harvests, the winter was suffered to pass without proper exertions on the part of miners.

Value of Gold Dust.

[From the Pioneer Times Oct. 26.]

An incident to the possession of California, and a consequence likely to take place soon, is the cessation of speculation in gold dust. This change will in reality place in the hands of the miners thousands of dollars, which have gone to the shipper in the form of profits.

Besides, the continual shipments of dust has had the effect of an unnatural state of affairs in the finances of California. But this is not likely to continue. The establishment of a mint will at once enhance the value of dust ten per cent or more. Dust which is now worth for $10 per ounce, will bring from $17 to $20 to $15, and where it is very clean, even more. This will make a great reduction in our financial affairs, and add to the real property of the State.

The principal open shipments of dust have generally gone to heavy shipping, but few of whom can really be classed amongst our permanent citizens. Agencies have been established by many of the largest banking houses of Europe to transact the business, and they have thus far been able to control it.

There is no reason why our citizens should not receive in California the real value of the dust, instead of the exorbitant ten or twelve per cent on its valuation. We have been in reality giving to the purchaser from one dollar and a half to two dollars, for taking our gold, and getting in return nothing but gold.

The legislative authorities of California made an attempt to place gold at its true value, but the moneyed influence was so great, that we were unable to accomplish this powerfully-aided object. But with the aid of our new mint, and California will be placed upon an equality with the Atlantic States.

With those who return to the States with their accumulated earnings, it makes but little difference what is the price paid here for dust; but with those who pay it out here, it makes a vast difference. The last mentioned class obtain but $16 per ounce, while the first named get $20 to $15, and where it is withdrawn from circulation of a large amount of gold, which would remain were it taken here for its real value. But this cause for complaint will soon be remedied, and those of us who pay their dust for property here, will be allowed its full valuation.

The next United States Senator.

[From the Stockton Journal Oct. 26.]

The election of an U. S. Senator will occupy some little attention in Los Angeles, and the approaching session of Congress. Several interests are already in the field, marshalling their forces for the contest.

They assemble in San Francisco, almost, as if by authority, that Fremont had not the slightest chance for re-election—that his friends exhausted themselves by their effort of the last session, and that it would be fruitless to again attempt electing him to the Senate. At the selection of a proper candidate for this important office is a matter which will be decided probably by the action of some powerful men in San Joaquin district. It would be advisable for candidates and their friends to ascertain the views of the few members from these districts, before they sum up their calculations.

Among those talked of as proper men to supersede Colonel Fremont, are Colonels Waller and Geary, of San Francisco; Major Bryant, the author of "What I saw in California"; Captain Hallock, formerly Secretary of the Treasury; and some other present able men from the State. Fremont, like most Republicans, has quite an array of military connections, who, with the exception of the last named, are preparing their forces for the fray. The contest will, no doubt, be as exciting one, and vigorously carried on between the parties.
